Tales Told by Survivors of Italian and Sicilian Disasters.

Pope Pius X. Opened the Vatican Hospital For Suffering Refugees.

President Roosevelt and American People Show Their Generosity.

ONLY SYMPATHY FROM ENGLAND

As the days pass new tales of horror are brought from the stricken districts in Southern Italy and Sicily. The stories of suffering and the stoutest hearts, but at the same time the whole world smiles through its tears at the generosity that has appeared from many different nations. It is now said that the work of rescue will be carried on as long as there is any hope, and that all survivors will be transported out of the danger line and the city of Messina will be forever abandoned. After the earthquake came the flames and then the tidal wave. Now, victims are preying on the dead and rotting bodies. Although the earthquakes have not abated the venerable Monsignor D'Arrigo, Archbishop of Messina, refuses to leave his palace, which trembles and threatens to fall with every shock. He insists on remaining to care for his stricken flock. Canitello and Villa San Giovanni have suffered as much as Messina. The work of rescue is being carried on with great difficulty. Three British and three French warships have arrived and are aiding in the work of rescue. Hundreds of wounded are lying on stretchers along the railway lines waiting to be sent to Messina and other cities. Most terrible scenes were witnessed at the founding asylum near Montavo Monastery. The unfortunate children were seen fighting for their lives among the ruins and some could go to their rescue. The Russian warships were first on the scene after the Italian vessels, and have inscribed a marvellous page on their annals by the example they have given of self-sacrifice and fraternity.

Every member of the Eighty-third Regiment was killed, and in the Eighty-ninth Regiment all who were not killed were wounded. Prisons collapsed, prisoners were killed, but a few escaped. Nearly 200 Custom House officers were killed. Dr. Abbozzo, a military surgeon, despite the fact that he had sustained a broken leg, mounted a horse and is still ministering to the injured at Messina.

The Associated Press even paid tribute to our Holy Father Pius X. for the success of the refugees from Messina when they arrived in Rome last Monday. The dispatches say: "The universal brotherhood spoken of by Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, was further emphasized at Rome this morning, when upon the arrival of 1,500 wounded from Messina and Reggio, Mayor Nathan, telephoned the Vatican asking whether these unfortunate could be taken in there. The Vatican replied in the affirmative, and the wounded were received with open arms. To realize fully what this incident signifies it must be explained that Signor Nathan is not a Catholic and that he was at one time Grand Master of the Free Masons. The first of the wounded sent to the Vatican were received at the railroad station by Monsignor Misatelli, sent especially by the Pope. Some of them were taken to the Vatican in public conveyances, but the more grievously injured were carried on stretchers by the Red Cross. They were received at the Vatican precinct by the nursing Sisters.

The Pope could not restrain his desire to bring them consolation and sought them out. He passed through the Basilica of St. Peter's over the arch connecting the Basilica with the hospital. Although he did not actually set foot on Italian territory he in reality went outside that area which, under the law, is guaranteed and enjoys the right of extraterritoriality. The hospital, belonging to the Pope, stands on Italian ground. The Pope's entrance into the hospital was the sign for an outburst of emotion, not only on the part of the patients, but even from the Pope himself and the members of his suite. Many of those who were not grievously wounded insisted on jumping out of bed to kneel and kiss the Pontiff's hand. The Pope spoke consolingly to each unfortunate. He said that since the earthquake he has lived only to think of them and study the best means of helping them. All his prayers to the Almighty had implored mercy, clemency and power to undergo the terrible strain, rising up again through the comfort of religion.

With full confidence in the generosity of the American people, President Roosevelt did not hesitate in taking steps to afford relief to the Italian sufferers. The fast steamer Celtic was loaded with supplies worth $300,000 for the fleet of American battleships that is now en route home after a cruise around the world. The President ordered the Celtic to hurry to the scene of disaster with her stores. When Congress opened Monday after the mid-winter holidays President Roosevelt transmitted a message to both the House and Senate, telling what he had done and asking our national legislators to approve his act, and to appropriate half a million dollars more for the Italian sufferers. Congress lost no time about it. Neither body was in session more than an hour, but they gave $500,000, instead of the $300,000 that the President asked for. The President and Congress have not been working well together recently, but all local animosities were forgotten in the face of the tragedy which was being enacted across the seas.

The people of Italy, whether at home or in America, are not ungrateful, but have shown appreciation of the generosity of the other nations. Raphael A. Serrano, Italian Consul in New York, writes:

"Far from my beloved fatherland and with a heart full of grief for the calamity which she confronts at this moment, you may understand with how much eagerness I read the tidings that I can get through all the newspapers. This morning I have been comforted by the account of the ship Celtic, which yesterday sailed at full speed with all kinds of supplies for the places of the disaster. I feel the gratitude of my countrymen resident here for this act of the Navy Department and its officers, who conceived the splendid idea. They deserve our eternal gratitude and thanks."

The British Cabinet has been urged to follow the example of the American Government, but thus far all the Italians have received officially from England is three cheers.

RETREAT FOR MEN.

Members of the Holy Name Society to Enjoy Privilege.

Next Wednesday a retreat for the members of the Holy Name Society will begin at St. Louis Bertrand's church and continue until the following Sunday, January 17, the feast of the Holy Name of Jesus. The exercises will be conducted by Father Foley, O. P., a noted Dominican missionary. The evening exercises will be held at 7:30 o'clock, and will consist of Rosary, sermon and benediction. There will be mass each morning, but the hour will not be announced until Father Foley arrives. It will probably be at 5:30 or 6 o'clock, so that all can hear mass and a brief instruction before going to their daily labors.

The Holy Name Society was established in Louisville thirty years ago by the venerable and Very Rev. Father Charles A. McKenna, O. P., who has devoted the greater part of his life to combating the evils of profanity and obscene language. The only branch of the society in Louisville is in St. Louis Bertrand's congregation, but there are men from other parishes in the city who are and have been for years members of this society. The members receive holy communion once a month and promise to abstain from the use of profanity and obscene language. In Louisville there are at present 100 members. In many of the Eastern cities of the United States the membership includes all the parishes, and runs from 4,000 to 50,000.

Although the retreat is to be conducted at St. Louis Bertrand's church, by a Dominican missionary, the men of every parish in the city are invited to attend the services as often as possible.

SAFE AT HOME

Kentucky and Tennessee People Toured Texas and Oklahoma.

Philip Kelly, as chipper as ever, his son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Esterle, all of Clifton; Mrs. William Farrar, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Edna Jenkins, his niece, of Pineville, returned to Louisville Tuesday morning, after a tour through Oklahoma and part of Texas. The Kentucky and Tennessee tourists left Louisville about Thanksgiving day, visited the oil fields of Oklahoma and Texas, and incidentally the cities of Galveston, Dallas, Sherman, Fort Worth and Houston.

The party spent Christmas at Paris, Texas, where they attended the first mass, and found a nice church, small but handsome, and a monument to Father Diamond's zeal. While in Paris the travelers were guests of Charles Kelly, a brother of Philip, a native of Louisville and Superior, a resident of the Gulf Pile line, which extends from Antlers, Okla., to Big Sandy, Texas. The church is gorgeously furnished and the tourists felt at home. The only sad note of the day was Father Diamond's announcement that he would transfer his residence to Fort Worth during January. The tourists had cameras and took snapshots in all the cities and towns.

At Fort Worth, Mr. Kelly, who had separated from his party, was the guest of Hon. James O'Dowd, a leading business man.

KALTENBACHER'S AMBITION.

Robert C. Kaltenbacher has formally announced his candidacy for the nomination for Circuit Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Mr. Kaltenbacher has been a deputy in the Circuit Clerk's office for the past ten years and has made a host of friends. He is thoroughly familiar with the details of the Circuit Clerk's office and his long service is an assurance of his competency. Young, talented and popular, there is no reason why Mr. Kaltenbacher should not be elected.

SAVED TWO LIVES.

Philip Donlon, a railway station-keeper at Meriden, Conn., was probably fatally hurt last Saturday in rescuing a mother and child from death in front of a moving express train. The woman and child were in the center of the tracks and became bewildered. Donlon saw their peril and jumping past the terrified spectators hurried the woman and child out of danger. The engine struck him with great force and he will probably die as the result of his injuries.

INSTALLED.

Council Deputies Administered Oath to the Y. M. I. Officers.

Both Trinity and Mackin Held Social Sessions to Celebrate.

Grand Chaplain's Address Was the Feature of Mackin's Event.

GOOD WORDS FROM LEADERS

The two local councils of the Y. M. I. held meetings and installed officers this week, and both installations were accompanied by entertainments of a varied character.

Trinity Council held its installation in the new club house on Monday evening. The installation of the officers was presided over by the Grand Chaplain, who made a fine address. There were no less than 300 in the hall, a majority of them members, a few visitors from other councils, and quite a number of young men who are eligible to membership in the order. Quite a lot of routine business was disposed of and three applications were received.

Addresses were made by Edward J. Kelly, representing the Grand Council, and John J. Sullivan, the Supreme Council. Others who made brief addresses were Vice President E. J. Conroy, David O'Connell and Robert Kaltenbacher. A number of the members furnished an athletic feature, and after this the members of the Trinity Council were treated to a German lunch provided by Lawrence Hoffman. All the visitors were shown through the new club house during the evening. The ladies who are assisting in making arrangements for the grand opening next month held a meeting at the club house last Sunday, and will meet again a week from next Sunday.

President Kelly made an able address during the evening, in which he thanked the members for the honor of re-election and commented on the fact that all the old and new officers were present.

The installation of Mackin Council attracted not only the members, but a large number of friends. The hall was crowded to its capacity despite the inclement weather. President Robert T. Burke called the meeting to order and a very brief business session was held. The council unanimously voted $25 for those suffering in the Italian catastrophe. The audience applauded the generosity of the members. Communications were read from the Supreme Council, and the Grand Chaplain, who presided, called attention to the fact that the council had received a letter from the Supreme Council, dated January 1, 1909, in which the council was informed that the council had been elected to the position of Grand Council for the year 1909.

The social programme was opened with a vocal solo by Miss M. E. McKeown. She was enthusiastically received and was compelled to respond to an encore. Robert T. Burke, the retiring President, delivered his valedictory address, and took occasion to compliment the members for their good work during the past year, and thanked them for supporting all his efforts. He called attention to the fact that his retirement from office Mackin Council owed its splendid property and was entirely out of debt for the first time in its history.

Council Deputy Sand assumed charge at this point and administered the obligation to the new officers in a very impressive manner. The evening was the new President, who was exceedingly happy in his salutory address. He asked the earnest support of the members during his administration, and said that he would place above all else the best interests of the 500 members of Mackin Council.

Miss Leta Whitton Blerach, the talented little entertainer, gave a vocal solo, and was compelled to respond to an encore. The great treat of the evening was the address delivered by the Grand Chaplain, the Rev. Father George M. Connor, of Owensboro. Father O'Connor eulogized the Young Men's Institute as one of the greatest of the church, and urged the order for its system and its democracy. He said he was proud of the order and proud of Mackin Council. He said it was made up of young men of character and determination. Self-interest, thoroughly national, and will start such an institution for the first time since the English conquest. This fact is enough to give 1908 a high place in the Irish annals and Irish gratitude.

A vocal duet by John J. Flynn and David Macneely made a hit, and the singers had to respond to an encore. Mr. Flynn then appeared alone and gave a series of recitations that kept the audience in roars of laughter for a quarter of an hour. The entertainment was closed by the singing of the Y. M. I. ode to the air "America."

An orchestra had been provided and the young people enjoyed a dance for an hour or more at the close of the regular exercises.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Owing to the urgency of his many friends, John L. Sullivan has consented to become a candidate for Magistrate in the Sixth district of Jefferson county, which is composed of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh wards of the city of Louisville. Mr. Sullivan is not only well known within the confines of the district in which he has become a candidate, but has hosts of friends all over the city and county. During the past five years he has been connected with the Circuit Clerk's office as Clerk of the Chancery Division No. 1 of the Circuit Court. His punctuality, his able manner and unflinching attention to business have made him popular with the bench and bar. Mr. O'Sullivan expects to win his race. He is a member of Division 4 of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and proud of his Irish progenitors.

GLOOM

That Settled Over England Has Been Off-set by Joy in Ireland.

Birrell's New Land Bill Is Hailed With Delight by Nation.

Conference on the Subject Will Be Held in Dublin Next Month.

GAELIC IN THE NEW UNIVERSITY

Simultaneous with the Italian earthquake came a severe spell of bad weather to England, and although the Britishers sympathize with the suffering people of Italy they have an array of gloom to look after at home. The bad weather has still further caused the loss of employment to many and privation and starvation are widespread. The Chicago Tribune from London that in addition to other causes of gloom in England the revenue returns show a decrease from former years, and the tariff reformers are calling more loudly for protection as the only remedy.

In Ireland the pensions brought about by the relief that in any other part of the three kingdoms. Nowhere were they more wanted or will they be better utilized, five shillings weekly being to the poor of that country a small fortune, assuring them of the future. The old age pensions are especially welcomed in the poorest parts of the counties like Mayo, for instance, which is getting $500,000 yearly in pensions. Altogether the experiment is a promising success and is certain to increase the popularity of the Government with the working classes everywhere and to be developed in other respects during the next year.

In Ireland the new year finds the people more cheerful than in England. The old age pensions bill, the first legislation from an English Parliament since the destruction of the Irish Parliament which gives the same privileges and hopes to the Irish people as to the English people, in addition to the achievements of the Irish party, is a subject of universal praise.

Funds to the Irish cause were rushed in at Christmas, making the annual subscription up to the present the respectable sum of $40,000, which, joined to the sum received from Redmond and Devlin's successful tours in America during the last autumn, places the Irish party in excellent financial shape.

The discussion of Birrell's land bill is proceeding eagerly. The landlords still denounce it and some critic is inspired by William O'Brien to attack it openly, but Redmond issues a spirited defense and announces that it is the pledge of the Government to the Irish people, and the first night of the next Parliament.

While some of the features of the bill are being criticized, it is the general feeling that it is the best and biggest land measure ever proposed, and, if passed, will settle, finally and justly, all the outstanding problems of the land war.

A national convention is called for February 9 and 10. William O'Brien gave half a promise to attend, but surrounds it with conditions which he hopes to fulfill. He is in a position and to absent himself. Even if he does attend his policy of hostility to Birrell's bill and the Irish party will receive a stern and practically unanimous condemnation.

A significant indication of the growth of the new and more hopeful Ireland is that, all over the country, the eager debate continues occupying speeches and columns in the newspapers with reference to the place of the Irish language in the new national university.

Whether the decision will be to make it a compulsory subject for entrance or give it a prominent place in the curriculum, the fact remains that the new university will be thoroughly Irish, thoroughly national, and will start such an institution for the first time since the English conquest. This fact is enough to give 1908 a high place in the Irish annals and Irish gratitude.

RAY FOR ASSESSOR.

P. S. Ray has announced his candidacy for the nomination for County Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Pres. Ray served four years as chief deputy under Benson O. Herr, and is acquainted with every detail of the County Assessor's office. Polite and accommodating, he made men of all who had occasion to do business with that office. In the event of his nomination his host of friends in the city and county will see that he is elected.

PASSIONIST NOTES.

James Callahan and Alfred Kadeny, who are studying for the priesthood, made their vows at the Sacred Heart Retreat, this day, on Wednesday afternoon, the feast of the Epiphany. The Rev. Father Wilfrid Avery, C. P., presided at the ceremony. Mr. Callahan will henceforth be known as Brother Dominic, and Mr. Kadeny as Brother Robert. The two novices have gone to the Passonist Retreat near Cincinnati to pursue their theological studies.

FIDELITY

Of Employees Appears to Have Been Appreciated by Corporation.

Men Have Served One Railroad For More Than Forty Years.

Healthful Sign When Employers Retain True and Tried Servants.

SOME OF THE MANY VETERANS

Good and reliable help is as much to the merchant, the manufacturer and the corporation as to the housewife. There is reliable as well as untrustworthy help, just as well as faithful and attentive cooks and housegirls. There are also unreliable employers as well as those who are reliable, but when you find a man working for a firm or corporation for twenty to twenty-five years and even forty years, you can not help thinking that the employers as well as the employees deserve some credit for the good faith and feeling that have retained men so long. There are quite a number of employers in Louisville who have old and faithful servants, but it is doubtful if any one firm or corporation can point to the record of the mechanical department of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company. George Conaway and Robert Board have been clerks in the storeroom for twenty-five and twenty-two years respectively, and Smith Conner, the Chief Storekeeper, has been with the company for at least twenty years, yet George and Robert and Smith are looked upon as more boys by men like Johnny Ford, Jack McNally, Anton Schmitt, John Heiden and Jeremiah Kavanagh.

John Ford, or Johnny as he is familiarly called, has been with the company forty-seven years, and Jack McNally equally as long. Both are still employed, but at duties less arduous than formerly. Anton Schmitt has been in the cabinet making department forty-six years, and Robert Board, formerly in the paint department, has been with the company for forty years. Both have raised families to be proud of and each has a son a priest.

Charles Loda, one of the best machinists and locomotive builders in the United States, has been with the company forty-five years, and John Heiden, the best of the best, equally as long. Jeremiah Kavanagh, foreman of the wheel and axle shop, has a record of more than forty-two years. In the freight car building shop Martin Elgelbach has a record of thirty-seven years, and George Miller, formerly the foreman of the foundry, who was retired on a pension January 1, was with the company forty years. Michael Hyl had spent thirty-five years or more in the foundry, and John Heiden about the same length of time in the pattern shop. James Humphreys and John Moore have spent thirty-five years or more in the tin and pipe-fitting shop. Joseph Burke learned his trade as machinist in the foundry, and he is still in the machine shop. Anton Geistlich and Martin Greenwald have been more than thirty years in the freight car shops. Patrick Gilmaue has been in the wheel shop for twenty-five years. Daniel McLaughlin, or Big Dan Mae, as he is familiarly known, has been making springs for cars and locomotives for more than thirty years, and Little Pat Connelly is still making springs, and will celebrate after thirty years of service.

Will Ramsey and George Brown have spent close to thirty years in the machine shop. John H. Hennessy has spent at least twenty-five years in the foundry, and Michael Shaughnessy has been equally as long in the blacksmith shop. John Kenefick has spent thirty or thirty-two years in the machine shops, and Martin Connelly, one of the roundhouse foremen, has been twenty-five years with the company. John J. Flynn, now Master Mechanic at Nashville, has been over thirty years in the company's service, and Pat Naughton, who says, was born in the boiler shop. He has been in it at least thirty years, and John J. Scare has been equally as long in the machine shop.

There are many locomotive engineers also who have been serving the company faithfully and well for many a day. Jim Sliott, controlled the throttle for forty-six years before he retired on a pension. He can do it again if the company needs him. Frank Smith is not an old man but he has been either firing or running an engine for forty years. Big Jack Foley has had his hand on the throttle for about the same length of time. John Feather, affectionately called "Pap" by the younger men, has been running for the company thirty years, and a veteran when he came here from Pennsylvania. John Clark, Miriam Proot, Philip Soden, Dan Sexton, S. W. Pettibone, Jim Cummings, Tom Grady, James Tighe and Tom Hedges are in the company's employ at least thirty years.

Henry, William and Joe Farrar, brothers, have run locomotives for the L. & N. so long that they are regarded as triplets by the other employees. John Davis, Charley Slade and Clarke Rae are looked upon as new comers, yet they have all served twenty-four or twenty-five years in the service, and Clarke Rae is now Assistant General Master Mechanic of the company. John L. Middendorf, who ran the "pay train" for years, is temporarily incapacitated, but his friends are expecting to see him back on the road very soon.

Harry Palmer, Bart Jones and T. B. Meals have served twenty-five years or longer. Tom McGuire has also been with the road at least thirty years. Dennis B. Kelly, another veteran engineer of twenty-five years or more, is now traveling engineer, and is known all over the country. Fred A. Burgess only recently severed his connection with the L. & N. to assume a position as one of the Assistant Chiefs of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Doubtless he could have his job back tomorrow if he so desired. Jim O'Neill, Tim Murphy and Tom McGuire are among the veteran engineers who have held the throttle for thirty years or more.

Then there is Philip Kelly, a native of Louisville, but not ashamed to own that he was born when Louisville was a village fifty-years ago. He is the last survivor of the L. & N.'s first pioneers. He helped to build the first locomotive ever built in Louisville. Mr. Kelly is still in the machine shop and can sing now as well as thirty-eight years ago the late Will S. Hays' song, "The Famous Twenty-nines."

"Clear the track, the bells are ringing. Here she comes on time! Thatcher Perkins is the builder Of the Twenty-nines!"

But there are other old and faithful men in the machine shop, among them Tom Connel and Hugh Lawler, with at least forty years to their credit, and possibly John Hannon has served equally as long. James Madden and Henry Schneider can point to a record of thirty-five years and William H. Neesler and Ed Seibert are proud of their thirty-years' service. A story about the mechanical department would be incomplete without a slight reference to Michael Fabry, but who is better known to his fellow workmen as "Mike Stack." He has been with the company forty years, and for a long time painted the locomotive chimneys every few trips.

The other departments have old and faithful men like Capt. William McGrath, Major John Gaist, D. J. Dunne and Thomas K. Hines, but none can equal the record of the mechanical department.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Noted Missionary Called to the Bar of Eternal Judgment.

On Monday morning the press dispatches brought the news of the death at Chicago of the Rev. Father J. A. Lambert, the noted missionary and lecturer. Early in December Father Lambert gave a mission of two weeks' duration here at the Sacred Heart church. His labors here were very productive and nothing was known of his illness until word of his death reached Louisville Monday morning.

Father Lambert was past sixty years of age. He gave missions and lectured in Louisville more than a quarter of a century ago. He was a noted scholar, preacher and a scientist of repute. The people of the Sacred Heart parish, who so recently benefited by his services, will long remember him in their prayers.

The Rev. Patrick Walsh, of this city, was one of the many priests who attended the funeral of the venerable clergyman.

CHURCH'S GIFT.

Bishop Contay's Offer of Land to Government Is Accepted.

The Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce received a telegram last Saturday from J. B. Reynolds, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury at Washington, that of the twenty-seven sites recently offered for the new Santa Barbara Federal building it had been decided to accept the one owned by the Catholic church. The value of the property is $24,000, and it was largely due to the generosity of Bishop Contay that the site was given practically free. Some of the other sites offered for $10,000, which was made by Congress, can be used on the building and furnishings, which insures a much handsomer edifice than would have been possible if a lot had been purchased at its real value. The selection of this site meets with general approval from the leading business men, and means at least three new buildings for the city instead of one, as Father Stockman's plan would have done. If this site, which adjoins the present parochial school, were accepted a new one would be built on the corner of Annapolis and Figueroa streets, while a handsome business block would replace the present church.

AFTER CLERKSHIP.

Walter Ratcliffe, who for twenty years was a deputy in the County Clerk's office, is a candidate for County Clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic party. Mr. Ratcliffe was a candidate for the office two years ago, but was defeated by a small margin. He knows many people in Louisville and Jefferson county as any man in Louisville. Since his retirement from office Mr. Ratcliffe has been engaged in the real estate business, and has had every opportunity to return to his popularity. His long service as Chief Deputy County Clerk is a sufficient guarantee that he is admirably well qualified to administer the affairs of the office.

WORK OF VANDALS.

The priests and people of St. Dominic's parish, San Francisco, are incensed over the work of one or more vandals who invaded the sanctuary on the eve of New Year's day and who, after destroying salt vestments worth at least $1,000, wrote indecent and obscene words on the altars and walls of the church. The police are at work on the case, but as nothing of value was taken away there is little hope of tracing the miscreants.

DOUBLE

Trouble For the City Administration Made by Decision of Court.

Forty Dollar Clerks Draw Ninety Dollars Per Month As Supervisors.

Police Play Part of Czar in the Fourth District Under Foster.

HOW LONG WILL THIS LAST?

The decision of Judge Emmet Field that policemen discharged from the Louisville force without trial are entitled to their respective salaries for the time they have lost entails an additional tax of from $25,000 to $30,000 on the taxpayers. No other decision was expected, because the same question has been decided on at least two occasions by the Court of Appeals. It means that the taxpayers of Louisville must pay $25,000 for the services of policemen they did not get.

Herman Roehr, a former Deputy Sheriff, published a card to the effect that he did not resign because of a disagreement with the present Republican administration. He is prepared to deny that he told a number of intimate friends who are Democrats, "Vote for Grinstead. He will allow the old terms to open on Sunday if elected."

The General Council refused Councilman John L. Richardson's request for the number of new policemen and firemen, therefore it would be hardly worth while for anyone to ask the names of 40 clerks in the City Engineer's office who are drawing $3 per day as supervisors. Some of them would not know the difference between a block of granite and a lump of charcoal unless they were hit with one of the two missiles. The general public has been awakening to conditions in the City Engineer's office, and to offset a scandal a blanket-raise of salaries for that department is being prepared.

Robert J. Foster, formerly private, Company C, Sixth Infantry, sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service, and to be confined at hard labor for the period of five years, to August 1, 1901, so reads the United States prison record, is acting Captain of police in the Fourth district. Foster is good at acting. He acted several times last Sunday, and as a result of his acting people in other parts of the city are asking: "Did he fall or was he pushed?" Foster tried to impress his authority on several reputable citizens of the West End last Sunday morning.

Mike Francis, who keeps a saloon at 1900 Portland avenue, was standing outside his home and place of business talking to Thomas McLaughlin, a friend, last Sunday morning, when a stranger appeared on the street and entered a side gate. The intruder wore a broad brimmed slouch hat, a muffer up to his chin, and the general air and appearance of hold-up men one reads about in penny dreadfuls.

The intruder tried first one door and then another before Mr. Francis reached him. In reply to the queries of Mr. Francis the stranger said he wanted to get in. Then he flashed his badge. He was a detective. "You are under arrest," he said to Francis. "All right," Mr. Francis replied. The detective blew his whistle and in less time than it takes to tell it, Lieut. George Kalmbach and Patrolmen Raggio and Borland appeared on the scene. Mr. Francis invited the quartette to enter the saloon. They did and found everything serene. Then they inspected the other rooms. Mrs. Francis invited them to come up stairs and under the inspection, but the invitation was declined.

"We'll take you, anyhow," said one of the police to Francis. Just as the party started away another stranger approached and tried to enter the bar-room. He said he wanted to buy some tobacco and he, too, was arrested and taken in tow. The little party proceeded to the Fourth district police station. Mr. Francis and the stranger were left standing on the street. The detective and policeman went to consult acting Capt. Foster.

While the conference was in progress William O'Keefe and George Goering, reputable citizens and friends of Mr. Francis, appeared on the scene prepared to go his bond. In a few moments Foster came bellowing into the room and rushing toward O'Keefe and Goering yelled: "Who are these people?" Before anyone could answer him he ordered them out. Mr. O'Keefe walked out. Mr. Goering started to explain his mission, but Foster threw him out. Mr. Francis was taken upstairs and this "You have been accused of violating the law by keeping open on Sunday, but I am going to give you the benefit of a doubt. You fellows can't pull the wool over my eyes. I am not going to stop until I break this thing up." Then he released Mr. Francis from custody.

In speaking of the matter to a representative of the Kentucky Irish American Mr. Francis said: "I have been in the saloon business eighteen years, and I keep an orderly and respectable place. It is the first time I was ever arrested in all these years and if I had violated any law I would not have been surprised. The insulting treatment given my friends Goering and O'Keefe hurts me, too." Messrs. Goering and O'Keefe have corroborated Mr. Francis' account of their mistreatment.

OBEY THE LAW.

At present the law reads that saloons in Louisville must be closed on Sunday, and however obnoxious this law may be to many, it must be obeyed until it is repealed. The Kentucky Irish American stands for law and order. It has no sympathy for the saloon-keeper who violates the law. If one must close on Sunday all should close, and the saloon-keeper who tries to take advantage of his fellows by surreptitiously selling drinks on Sunday deserves no sympathy from self-respecting people. Neither have we any sympathy for the present maneuvers of the police force. They have no right to invade homes and patrol streets in a way to deprive a man of his privacy. If a saloon-keeper violates the law take his license away. On the contrary, the present administration is not making a move to revoke licenses, but keeps up its costly tactics for political aggrandizement only.

SUFFRAGETTE MOVEMENT.

One hears and reads a great deal these days concerning the "Suffragette" movement, formerly called the "Woman's Rights" movement. Fortunately Louisville has not been much pestered with females who desire the right of suffrage. In this city and State the women continue to be the "tender sex" and appear to enjoy the gallantry of the men who arise and surrender their seats in a crowded street car, but it is not thus all over the country. In the North and East particularly there are some women who are aping the manners of the women of England who are making things hot for the British Government.

If you would ask one of these so-called strong-minded women to write an essay on the life of the Queen of Madagascar she might refuse on the ground that she knew nothing about the subject, and yet she would not hesitate to write or deliver addresses about "State Debts," "Defense Proposals of the Federal Government," or "Why the Navy Should Not Be Increased." She knows as much about the Queen of Madagascar as about these other subjects.

Woman's sphere is the home. The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, and if the mothers will continue to be mothers and see that there is something in the cradle to rock they will not need to worry about the right to vote. The woman who is a faithful wife and mother will wield an influence over good sons, husbands and brothers.

HURRY-UP MARRIAGE.

That story of the Ohio widow, sixty-six years old, who claims she was kidnapped and married by a man of forty-eight years, sounds fishy, yet the records show that Cynthia R. McCarthy and John Daily were actually married by a Baptist minister at Covington two weeks ago. The marriage was performed by a Baptist minister of thirty years' standing, even after it was seen that the bride had to be assisted in walking up a flight of stairs. No wonder the Catholic church is so cautious about the marital rite before it is performed. The marital state is the foundation of the social fabric, and the church tries to prevent hasty and mixed marriages.

It is not wise to make too many good resolutions at the opening of the new year. Make one good one, and then make another—resolve to adhere to the first one.

WORD IN SEASON.

A young girl was passing her aged great aunt one day when she suddenly stopped, laid her hand gently on the white head and said: "How pretty and curly your hair is, Aunt Mary! I wish I had such pretty hair!"

The simple words brought a quick flush of pleasure to the wrinkled face and there was a joyous quiver in her brief acknowledgment of the spontaneous little courtesy.

A young man once said to his mother: "You ought to have seen Aunt Esther today when I remarked casually, 'what a pretty gown you have on today and how nice you look in it.' She almost cried, she was so pleased. I hadn't thought before that such a little thing would be likely to please her."

"I never expect to eat any cookies as good as those you used to make, mother," said a bearded man one day, and he was shocked when he saw her evident delight in his words, for he remembered that he had not thought to speak before for years of any of the thousand comforts and pleasures with which her skill and love had filled his boyhood.

APPEAL FOR AID.

The receipts in 1932 of the Society for the Preservation of the Faith among Indian children amounted to Misses Edith and Elise Cullen, formerly of Savannah, and daughters of T. F. Cullen, have returned to Sacred Heart Academy after spending the Christmas holidays with their sister, Mrs. J. B. Ford, 849 Third street.

Michael Carroll's many friends will be pleased to learn that he is again able to be up and after an attack of rheumatism that confined him for three weeks to his room in Madison Avenue, Twenty-sixth and Madison streets.

Miss Della O'Brien, of Clifton, gave a box party at the Masonic Theater last Saturday afternoon. Her guests included Miss Margaret Fay, of Chicago; Misses Nell Reedy, Lottie McCloy, Stella Harrington and Viola Steffernan.

Miss Nellie Hallinan is home from Cincinnati, where she spent the holiday season as the guest of Mrs. Oscar Coldevey. She also visited friends at Covington and Newport and was the guest of honor at a number of enjoyable social functions.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke Ketteringham have begun housekeeping at Natchez, Miss. The bride was formerly Miss Anna May Mooney, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mooney, of this city. They were married by the Rev. Father Charles P. Ruffo, at St. Charles' rectory, on Wednesday, December 30.

Miss Catherine Bowling, a charming and popular young lady of the East End, has returned to the Sacred Heart Academy in Crescent Hill to resume her studies after spending the holidays at home. Miss Bowling has made excellent progress in the past half-year and has the best wishes of everyone for the ensuing half, when she will again be heartily received by both friends and relations.

One of the most delightful affairs of the new year was the supper given by John Reardon, the popular Oldham-street grocer, last Sunday evening. Among those present were

Thomas Higgins, Patrick Gorman, Clint Phelps, John Evans, James Langan, George Simpson, Henry McPherson, Dan, John and Raymond Reardon, P. G. King, Maj. and John Shaughnessy, Dennis J. Gleason and John, Martin and Will Grogan. The feature of the evening was a skit by Dennis J. Gleason, John J. Grogan and P. G. King. It was called "A Club Sandwich."

Mrs. James P. Hannon, of Chicago, formerly Miss Virginia Barrett, of Louisville, returns to the Lakeside City today after spending a fortnight here. Mr. and Mrs. Hannon came to Louisville on the eve of Christmas and spent the week's end with relatives. Mr. Hannon returned to his duties in Chicago on the Monday following Christmas. During her stay in Louisville Mrs. Hannon was entertained at social functions by her mother, Mrs. Mary T. Barrett, of 538 East Main street; Misses Lee and Catherine McCluskey and by Miss Virginia Barrett. All of her former classmates at Presentation Academy who are now residing in Louisville attended each of the social events given in Mrs. Hannon's honor.

CALLED HOME.

Miss Mary Rose Lenihan, a very popular young lady of the Dominican parish, died at the family residence, 1478 First street, at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Death resulted from lung trouble superinduced by an attack of pneumonia sustained a year ago. The deceased was twenty-one years old and a girl of charming personality. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Lenihan, and several brothers and sisters. Joseph L. Lenihan, of the City Assessor's office, is a brother, and the Rev. Father John Creany, formerly of this city, now of Fond du Lac, Wis., is an uncle. The funeral took place from St. Louis Bertrand's church Tuesday morning.

The requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Doyle, O. P., and the Rev. Father John J. Fitzgerald, pastor of St. Leo's church, occupied a place of honor.

The pall bearers were Thomas A. Shelley, John J. Barry, William Perry, Thomas Dwyer, J. J. Kavanaugh and Guy Nevin.

WORTH READING.

Will Be Ed. Fitzpatrick's Letters From Hoosier Capital.

Mr. Edward Fitzpatrick is in Indianapolis as legislative correspondent for the Louisville Times. His regular duties on the Times have been mostly confined to this city, where he is City Hall and political reporter. Mr. Fitzpatrick is, however, better known in Indiana, where he has long been connected with the Courier-Journal and Times as legislative and political correspondent. He is Secretary of the Democratic Congressional Committee of the Third Indiana district, where he has many warm friends, particularly so at his home in New Albany. Mr. Fitzpatrick is a close friend of Gov. elect Marshall, Col. Tom Taggart, and in fact of all the leading Democrats of Indiana. His past experience will enable him to secure the most reliable news and write letters worth reading.

JUICY PLUMS.

Are Handed to Popular People by Circuit Judges.

The six Judges of the Jefferson Circuit Court met on Monday and handed out two juicy plums. Eustace L. Williams was chosen Commissioner of the Circuit Court, and J. H. Gilbert was elected to succeed himself as Receiver of the court. The plums are worth in fees and commissions $5,000 per annum.

Mr. Williams has been engaged in journalism in Louisville for the past fifteen years, and during part of the time has been the court reporter for the Times and Courier-Journal. He is intelligent, energetic and popular. There is no doubt that he will make a good official.

Jolly Jack Gilbert is well known in local affairs. He has made an excellent official in the past, and the Circuit Judges felt that one good term deserved another.

HELOVED TEACHER DEAD.

Miss Clara Sheridan, a well known and highly esteemed teacher at the Montgomery-street school, died at her home, 2023 Lytle street, early Tuesday morning. She had been ill several months and suffered from a complication of diseases. All that loving care and the best medical science could do were of no avail, and Miss Sheridan sank into eternity fully resigned. The deceased was born in Louisville thirty years ago and graduated from the Girls' High School in 1898. Later she attended the Normal School, and during the last eight years had been teaching. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Sheridan, two sisters, Misses Mary E. and Susan Sheridan, and three brothers, Nicholas J., Edward and Bernard Sheridan. The funeral took place from St. Patrick's church Thursday morning, and the unusually large attendance testified to the high esteem in which Miss Sheridan was held.

CORDIALLY INVITED.

Branch 45, C. K. of A., will install its officers for the ensuing year at St. Mary's Hall next Monday evening. President William Norton and Secretary Charles Hill invite all members of the order in the three Falls Cities to be present at the meeting to witness the installation ceremony and partake of the spread that will be prepared.

ONE NEW TEACHER.

Owing to the increase in the number of pupils it became necessary to add an additional teacher to St. Louis Bertrand's parochial school this week. The pupils number 300 and are taught by six Dominican nuns.

JOS. BARON, PLUMBER.

I recently added the Air Pump Department to my Plumbing Business. I will be grateful for any of your patronage, and am also Agent for the Carbonic Gas Drums.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Late News That Will Interest Members Here and Elsewhere.

There are 40,000 members of the order in New York State.

The bowling team of East St. Louis Council broke the handicap record in the city tournament with 3,033 pins.

New Jersey has two Congressmen who are Knights. They are Hon. James A. Haniff and Eugene F. Kinkead.

The council at Sheridan, Wyo., has a membership of more than 100, and is recognized as the best council in the State.

Pere Marquette Council entertained the Knights of Milwaukee Council and their ladies on the eve of New Year's day.

Kearlek Council, of St. Louis, Mo., entertained 250 children with an electrically lighted Christmas tree. New Year's gifts for all the children.

Indianapolis Council has raised $15,000 for its building fund, and has resolved to raise $25,000 of the necessary $50,000 before ground is broken for the new home.

Trenton Council, one of the largest in New Jersey, has opened the year with a building fund. The members expect to erect a building that will be a credit to the order and a monument to the council.

In Syracuse both Syracuse and Le Moyne Councils kept open house on New Year's day. The former had a lobster lunch and later a literary entertainment, while the latter gave a dinner and tried out its new nine-star troupe.

'SQUIRE ADAMS ANNOUNCES.

'Squire John M. Adams has formally declared that he is a candidate for County Assessor. While he is extremely modest concerning his record, his friends say that the Democrats of Louisville owe it to themselves to nominate him. It is declared that he made the best County Assessor Louisville and Jefferson county ever had. He was one of two men reappointed to office by Gov. Beekman after the decision of the Court of Appeals in June, 1927.

The 'Squire has always been an active, working Democrat and, before his election as County Assessor, served as Magistrate from the Eighth district, which includes the Eleventh and Twelfth wards of Louisville. Mr. Adams is popular in all sections of the city and county, and if he were running for a national office all the bowlers in the United States would cast their ballots for him.

HEALER IN EMERYO.

William J. McCann, Jr., has come all the way from Omaha to pursue the study of medicine at the Louisville University. He is the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Hannon, on Longest avenue. Mr. McCann is a son of Dr. William J. McCann, formerly of Louisville and now one of the leading physicians of Omaha, Neb. Dr. McCann is a graduate of a Louisville medical college, and sent his son to Louisville because he could get better training here than elsewhere. Mr. McCann is quite a musician, and Mrs. Mary T. Barrett entertained in his honor at her home, 538 East Main street, last Monday night.

HOPKINS' THEATER.

Crowded houses were the rule at the Hopkins' Theater during the present week, and as usual the humorous motion pictures evoked the most applause. Manager Dustin declares that inclement weather serves to make business good. Next week he will offer an entire change of films and new illustrated songs.

MINE HOST O'BRIEN.

Col. Pat O'Brien, one of the most prominent citizens of Frankfort, has been named manager of the Frankfort Hotel, one of the most popular hostleries in the State capital. Col. O'Brien is one of the most progressive Irish-Americans in Frankfort and will make a capital host.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing
the Past Week—General News Notes.

A strong division has been founded and able officers elected at DeGraff, Minn.

Division 6 of Syracuse has grown from 150 to 275 members in two years.

Division 1 of Brockton, Mass., will celebrate its thirty-sixth anniversary with a banquet.

It would be well for all division officers at this season to resolve to organize and support juvenile divisions.

Middlesex county, Massachusetts, reported an increase of 300 members between two meetings of the County Board.

During the past twenty years the order has distributed $1,500,000 to schools, churches and orphan asylums.

Musical addresses and entertainment were features of the social session held by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Milwaukee last Monday.

Since the national convention at Indianapolis the various divisions have given $20,000 to the Church Extension Society.

According to the way the order is progressing in Connecticut at present it will be the premier for its size in 1909 reports.

Division 3 of Hartford, Conn., has $30,000 in its treasury. Its President has declined reelection after twelve years of service.

Capt. John J. Rogers, State President in Massachusetts, predicts that this will be the greatest year in the history of the order.

St. Louis Hibernians are preparing to give an entertainment for the benefit of Father Dempsey's home for unemployed men.

Brockton, Mass., had the first juvenile division in the United States. It was organized two years ago, and now has 150 members.

The Connecticut State Board of the Ladies' Auxiliary met last Sunday and took steps to have Irish history taught in the parochial schools.

The St. Louis County Board has given $10 to the St. Vincent de Paul Society of that city for distribution among the poor of four parishes.

Dr. E. J. McSwenney, one of the most practical and sincere Irishmen in New England, has presented Division 1 of Brockton with a collection of sixty Irish boys.

The new home for the order that is being planned for Syracuse, N. Y., is the original idea of Edmund D. Lynch, who is Chairman of the Building Committee.

Division 4 of Minneapolis will install its officers and hold a social session next Tuesday evening. Vocal and instrumental music will add pleasure to the occasion.

The divisions in Syracuse and its vicinity of Onondaga county, New York, are planning to erect a county club house. There are 1,200 Hibernians in the county and 800 in the Ladies' Auxiliary.

The three largest divisions of the order in the Empire State are Division 1 of Glen Falls, with 425 members; Division 11 of New York county, with 320; and Division 6 of Syracuse, with 275.

Division 1 of New London, Conn., paid out more than $50 in sick benefits, $144 for charitable purposes and $200 for other purposes during the past year. It still has $2,000 in the treasury and $1,200 worth of paraphernalia.

Edmund D. Lynch, of Division 3 of Syracuse, N. Y., and Chairman of the committee arranging for the proposed club house in that city, is a nephew of William M. Higgins, editor of the Kentucky Irish American. He is about twenty-five years old.

At a recent meeting of the Suffolk County Board, held in East Boston, Mass., nearly all the State officers were present. National President Matthew Cummings was also on hand, and in behalf of the board presented State Vice President Dillon with a handsome gold watch.

PROVIDED FOR SCHOOLS.

By the will of the late Joseph A. Connor, of Omaha, five or six parochial schools will be built in that city. Each building will cost in the neighborhood of $20,000. An endowment fund of $2,000 for each school is also provided.

DANCE AT FRANKFORT.

The Pastime Club, composed principally of the Catholic young men of Frankfort, Ky., gave its annual dance at the Frankfort Hotel last week. It was a brilliant success, and is considered the greatest event ever given by that popular organization.

GOOD TIDINGS

From the Frankfort Y. M. I. and Their Latest Officers.

The advent of the new year marked an epoch in the revival of interest in the Young Men's Institute in Frankfort, Ky. The new officers of the Institute are:

Chaplain—Rev. Father Thomas S. Major.
President—D. J. McNamara.

First Vice President—W. G. Weitzel.
Second Vice President—J. J. Brislan.

Recording Secretary—John J. Canty.
Corresponding Secretary—W. A. Lutkemeier.

Financial Secretary and Treasurer—F. B. Weitzel.

Inside Sentinel—Charles Whitehead.
Outside Sentinel—Jos. J. Gertler.

Executive Committee—H. F. Lutkemeier, B. W. Ebner and James A. Brislan.

President McNamara will announce his committee after the installation tomorrow afternoon. Council Deputy W. H. Oberman will preside at the installation.

The members are planning several new style entertainments to take place between the present time and the beginning of Lent. Two new members were initiated at the last meeting and it is believed that 1909 will be the banner year in the history of the council.

GREAT CITIES

Are Exclusively the Product of the Twentieth Century.

The century of cities is the twentieth century. In 1801 there were only twenty-two European cities with more than 100,000 inhabitants.

These cities were London, Dublin, Paris, Marseilles, Lyons, Amsterdam, Berlin, Vienna, Naples, Milan, Venice, Palermo, Madrid, Barcelona, Lisbon, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Warsaw, Copenhagen and Constantinople. Of these only two had more than half a million inhabitants, London and Paris.

At the present time Europe contains seven cities with a million or more. These are London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Constantinople, while America has three cities with more than a million inhabitants. These are New York with more than 1,000,000, about 2,000,000 less than London; Chicago with over 2,000,000, Philadelphia with over 1,000,000.

In Asia also there are several cities with populations exceeding a million. The population of the great cities of antiquity is not accurately known. Seleucia has been credited with 600,000 inhabitants. Alexandria with 600,000 or 700,000. Rome in the reign of Augustus with 800,000. Carthage with 700,000, but these estimates are little other than guesses.

MASONIC THEATER.

"Texas," a four-act play of early American frontier life, will be presented by Broadhurst and Currie at Louis Thiel and Stephen Hoyt at the Masonic.

The Masonic Theater the week of January 11, beginning with the regular Monday matinee.

Large hats are made with flexible brims easily bent.

American shoes are vogue both in Paris and London.

Books of velvet hold their own against costliest velvets.

The plain boat is voted in good taste with tailored frocks.

A pretty hood is of chiffon wired to stand out over the face.

Semifitting and loose wraps are favored for evening wear.

Gloving girls are wearing princess frocks on the jumper order.

Buttons continue to ornament gowns from corselet to hem.

The newest gored skirts have narrow front and wide back panels.

One sees many hats of zibeline simply trimmed with pearl quills.

Plain materials are combined with broad and embroidered velvets.

Brocade and leather with a burnished buckle makes a handsome belt.

It is fashionable to wear the unpaired and undulated in soft waves.

Metallic embroidery are the legion; they are used on everything.

A round skirt with flat box plait on either side has just been launched.

If these are used the part of the hair between the bands are puffed out.

Little girls are wearing black stockings and patent leather slippers.

The Bagdad turban has a high crown made taller by a pompadour algrette.

Tight fitting and trailing skirts with loose coats make the figure look slighter.

Peppermint striped blouses are made of linen with strips of white, green, red and blue.

Colored linen handkerchiefs are fashionable.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

A branch of the Gaelic League has been established at Muff, County Monaghan.

Derry corporation has applied for a $7,500 loan to build a new police court and morgue.

Charles Mernagh has been elected Assistant Clerk of the Eumecorthy Board of Guardians, County Wexford.

Edmund Harty, of Ballymore, and Patrick Trami, of Listowel, have been appointed Magistrates for County Kerry.

In Belfast 316 claims for old age pensions have been recommended by the Falls ward committee and 217 by the St. Anne's ward committee.

Patrick Ginnane, an elderly resident of Clonmumper, County Mayo, was run down by a train near Kibbeg station and literally cut to pieces.

Thomas Fanning, a small boy living with his parents at Milestown, County Louth, was accidentally scalded to death while playing near the fire.

The Bowdoin Board of Guardians, County Cavan, has appointed Dr. John J. Sheil, of Drumcondra, medical officer for the Newtownmore dispensary district.

Little progress has been made toward purchasing the rights of the owner of Derrygooney Mills to prevent the water from flooding a large area of the ground.

Bernard Mulligan, a popular grocer of Castleblayney, is dead after a year's illness. His father and several brothers, all prominent in the County Louth, survive him.

The Boyle O'Reilly Knights of Hibernia visited a band of Mormon missionaries at Dundalk and invited them to leave. They left when they found their visitors meant business.

The Rev. Father Mullins, of Windgap, County Waterford, has been appointed curate at Ferrybank to succeed the Rev. Father P. Freyne, who has been transferred to Johnstown in the same county.

Miss Sarah Waldron has made her profession at the Sisters of Mercy Convent at Tuam. She is the sister of James Waldron, of Clarenorris, and the third member of the family to enter upon a religious life.

The solemn ceremony of dedicating the Church of Our Lady in Waterford City, which has recently been restored and extended, was carried out by the Most Rev. Dr. Sheehan in the presence of a large gathering and the Mayor and corporation.

Widespread regret was felt in West Waterford when the sad news was made known that Rev. Father Walsh, the respected parish priest of Knockanore, had passed away. Deceased had been parish priest of Knockanore for many years, but had been in poor health for some time past.

The case in which Patrick Looney, Francis Buckley, William Moylan and Edward Guiney were charged with having caused an explosion at the residence of Jeremiah Cronin at Massena, was tried before Messrs. O'Hara and Williams, who dismissed the accused, there being no evidence against them.

Roger Fenton, a rent collector, visited Killynane, County Limerick, to demand possession from several tenants of Col. Gasconin, who had been given notice to quit. The women in the houses doused him with hot and cold water until Fenton beat a retreat. Gasconin had refused his tenants a reduction.

Reports from Drummear and Dunleer indicate that the people are not going to give up their right to the integrated lands on the Rathdownell estate without a fight. John Redmond and Messrs. Nolan and Henley, Parliamentary representatives, were among the speakers at a monster meeting at Dunleer last Sunday.

BLIND PRIEST GIVEN PRIVILEGES.

A blind Irish priest, residing in England, presented the Holy Father with a gold chain, which deeply impressed the Pontiff. The Pope sent the blind priest very special privileges for the saying of mass.

MEAGER RETURNS.

Rockefeller says he will give several millions of dollars for the education of the poor. Why not cease stealing from the poor by overcharging them a hundred per cent. for his oil, and permit them to educate themselves?

FANCIES OF FASHION.

The empire style now rules for evening gowns.

Large hats are made with flexible brims easily bent.

American shoes are vogue both in Paris and London.

Books of velvet hold their own against costliest velvets.

The plain boat is voted in good taste with tailored frocks.

A pretty hood is of chiffon wired to stand out over the face.

Semifitting and loose wraps are favored for evening wear.

Gloving girls are wearing princess frocks on the jumper order.

Buttons continue to ornament gowns from corselet to hem.

The newest gored skirts have narrow front and wide back panels.

One sees many hats of zibeline simply trimmed with pearl quills.

Plain materials are combined with broad and embroidered velvets.

Brocade and leather with a burnished buckle makes a handsome belt.

It is fashionable to wear the unpaired and undulated in soft waves.

Metallic embroidery are the legion; they are used on everything.

A round skirt with flat box plait on either side has just been launched.

If these are used the part of the hair between the bands are puffed out.

Little girls are wearing black stockings and patent leather slippers.

The Bagdad turban has a high crown made taller by a pompadour algrette.

Tight fitting and trailing skirts with loose coats make the figure look slighter.

Peppermint striped blouses are made of linen with strips of white, green, red and blue.

Colored linen handkerchiefs are fashionable.

"GETTING EVEN."

Do not waste any time trying to "get even" with some one who has wronged you. It is impossible to employ a single hour to worse advantage. Some one has truly said that "getting even" is an idea of revenge found only in the philosophy of fools.

Truer words were never uttered. This idea that because some one else has stooped to a low, contemptible act, you must, too, is not worthy of a moment's consideration by high-minded men. Do not allow what some one else has done to put you out of harmony with your best self.

"Getting even" hurts you a hundred times more than it injures anyone else.

AUXILIARY

For Archbishop Mordant May Be Made Conductor Very Soon.

Bishop O'Connell Will Shortly Retire From the Catholic University.

Montana Prelate Is Now Being Tipped to Succeed Him.

CHANGES THAT ARE EXPECTED

It was announced from Rome by cable this week that the Right Rev.
Monsignor Dennis O'Connell, Rector of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., had been appointed by the Pope as Auxiliary Bishop of San Francisco. It is said that the office will later be changed to that of Archbishop of San Francisco. The same cable message says the appointment was largely due to the influence of Archbishop Ireland, who is now in Rome.

The news of Monsignor O'Connell's appointment was neither surprising nor unexpected. It is believed that he will enter upon his new duties in San Francisco as soon as he can satisfactorily adjust affairs at the University. He will prove of great aid to Archbishop Ireland, who has been without an assistant for more than two years.

Monsignor O'Connell was born of Irish parents in the State of South Carolina. He received his early education in the schools of that State and later attended St. Mary's College at Columbia, S. C., and later at St. Charles' College, Maryland. From the latter institution he graduated in 1871. After five years spent in the study of philosophy and theology at Rome, he was ordained a priest in June, 1877. In August of the same year he went to the diocese of Richmond, but was soon after sent to Rome as the postulator for the pallium of Cardinal Gibbons. He returned in 1878 and for several years had charge of missions along the James river in Virginia.

Monsignor O'Connell was made Rector of the American College at Rome in 1885, and assumed the duties in the following year. While he was administering the affairs of that institution all debts were paid off and a nice sum was left in the treasury of the institution. He came to the Catholic University as Rector in April, 1903, and during the spring of last year was elevated to the episcopacy.

The Vatican authorities will now attend to the selection of a new Rector for the university. The list of candidates was forwarded last week. The consensus of opinion points to Bishop Carroll, of Montana, as the next head of the great Washington school of learning.

Before going to Montana in 1901
Bishop Carroll was President of St.
Joseph's College at Dubuque, Iowa, for ten years, and had previously served that institution five years as professor of mental philosophy.
Bishop Carroll was born in Dubuque in 1854, and was educated at Grand Seminary, Montreal. He was ordained priest in 1880.

One of the interesting developments of Catholic education is the removal of the training of Catholic nuns, now under consideration by the authorities of the Catholic University.

The project has been brought before the Board of Archbishops for several years. Every annual meeting. The prelates have been overwhelmed with other business and so far no decision has been announced.
It is known that when the Archbishops meet in Washington in April next the plan will again be laid before them with the most urgent pleas for its consideration that the foundation is expected within the year.

The normal school for training nuns has been suggested to the authorities of the Catholic University because the demand for such training has become universal and the Papal institution is the proper channel by which to supply such needs.

The Apostolic Delegate, Monsignor Falconio, has received many petitions from the heads of the teaching orders asking that their future professors be permitted to study in non-Catholic colleges, such as Bryn Mawr, Radcliffe and Wellesley. They point out that their schools are now in competition with schools where the teachers have the finest educational advantages which the American continent can supply.

While there are countless fine colleges for women under non-denominational control in every section, there is only one for the higher education of Catholic women. This is adjacent to the Catholic University, Trinity College, and owes its existence to help received from the Catholic University.

PEERLESS ELECTS.

The Peerless Democratic Club held its first meeting of the new year at Brown's Hall, Jefferson street, near Haven and Shelby, last Tuesday night. Eighty-one members were present and resolutions were adopted calling on the City and County Committee to hold a primary for the nomination of salaried and non-salaried officers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, William Detzel; Vice President, Cob Burtie; Corresponding Secretary, John Joyce; Financial Secretary, Charles Desso; Treasurer, Frank Devan; Secretary-at-Arms, John Hermann; Robert J. Bartholomew, Sid Davidson, James Martin and Herman Braehme were elected delegates to the Federation of Democratic Clubs.

HEROINE

Of the Crimean War Deserved
Well of the British Nation.

Served as Nurse During Time of War and Awful Pestilence.

Mother Mary Aloysius Lived to the Advanced Age of Ninety-Four.

BORN IN THE COUNTY KILDARE

The recent death of Sister Mary Aloysius, Mother Superior of the Convent of Mercy at Gort, County Galway, Ireland, at the age of ninety-four, was only briefly mentioned in the press outside of Ireland, and yet the memory of Mother Mary deserves well at the hands of the English, because she was one of the real heroines of the Crimean war.

In recent years Mother Aloysius devoted herself to work in a Galway, which, though it did not attract much attention, bore such abundant and lasting fruits in her own lifetime that she will long be remembered by the young generation in South Galway, who are indebted to her for the wonderful progress that has been made, not only in the better organization of teaching work, but for the great development of industrial training that has been effected in later years.

The English war office recognized the usefulness of the French nuns in the hospitals of Constantinople and applied for Sisters. The entire community in Ireland volunteered, but Sister Mary Aloysius was one of the little band chosen. The nuns started from London on December 2, 1854, having been said farewell to by Dr.
Manning, afterward the great Cardinal. From Marseilles they sailed in an old French ship called the Egyptus, "cramped with cavalry for the seat of war" and had some very stiff weather in the Mediterranean, and for a time were in great danger.
At Athens two Sisters of Charity visited them on board. One was Irish—"a great and unexpected pleasure."

At last they reached their destination, after a most memorable and exciting voyage, to find that they were "not wanted at Sentari." The war office, it appears, had made a mistake in sending out the party,
"no room for them." The French Sisters of Charity, however, made them welcome. At length the incompetent war office authorities found room, and they began their noble work. Sister Mary Aloysius was sent to one of the boldest squads, and she gives a most heartrending description of what she saw there.

"The cholera was of the very worst type," she writes, "the attacked men lasting only four or five hours." And at last doctors and all attending "seemed to be getting paralyzed, and the orderlies indifferent as to life or death. An orderly officer took the rounds of the wards every night to see that all was right. He was expected by the orderlies, and the Convent raised the latch one cried out: 'All right, Your Honor.' Many a time I said 'all wrong!'"

The little volume is full of interesting reminiscences. A Catholic soldier sent for the Sister. She told him she had sworn to be a nun and after he did not happen to be very bad. "All I want to know, ma'am," he said, "is, are you one of our own Sisters of Mercy from Ireland?"
"Yes," I said, "your very own." "God be praised for that!" was his reply.
Sister Mary Aloysius was afterward, with some others, sent to Balachava, where all the nursing, day and night, was to be done by them.
Here they had some terrible experiences, and she wrote:

"In passing to the wards at night
we used to meet the rats in droves.
They would not even move out of our way. They were there before us and were determined to keep possession.
As for our own kit, they evidently wanted to make it theirs, scrapping under the boards, jumping up on the shelf where our little utensils were kept, rattling everything. One night dear Sister M. Paula found one looking her forehead—she had a real horror of them. Sleep was out of the question. One of the nuns died and was buried in the hills, Miss Nightingale attending the funeral and joining in the prayers said by one of the three present.

Another Sister also died, and was greatly honored by the whole army, of all sections and grades. Finally the survivors reached home after nearly two years of glorious devotion and self-sacrifice." Sister Mary Aloysius, in 1879, was presented by Queen Victoria with the decoration of the Red Cross and asked to go to Windsor to receive it. But, in a very beautiful letter, she excused herself in not being able at her age to make the journey.

The late Mother Mary Aloysius was a member of the well known and highly respected Doyle family, of Old Killeen, County Kildare, who were long established in that district, though at the present time few, if any, of the old stock reside in that neighborhood. Two nephews of the venerable nun are residents in the city of Dublin, the well known wine merchants, Messrs. J. J. Egan and D. J. Egan. A younger sister of the deceased, Mother Xavier, is a member of the Order of Mercy at Gort, and two of her nieces are also in the same convent.

KNIGHTS AT FRANKFORT.

Owing to the fact that members of the Frankfort Knights of Columbus Club have been very busy during the Christmas holidays no meeting was held in December, but preparations are being made for a meeting which will be held at the Y. M. I. hall early next week. At that time steps will be taken to arrange for the annual enough and dance, which has always been recognized as the social event of the year in Frankfort Catholic circles. President Soave will name the committee to make necessary preparations.
